

STaRRlite

An online introductory research training workshop for people working in health settings across western Victoria

Western Alliance's inaugural STaRRlite workshop is taking place via Zoom on Wednesday 28th February, from 9:00 - 12:30 pm.

STaRRlite is designed for health practitioners, including clinicians, program staff, and managers who would like to gain foundational knowledge and skills to begin or support a team member in engaging in a health research or quality improvement project.

STaRRlite is a half-day online workshop open to all staff working at a Western Alliance member health organisation*

Western Alliance covers the cost of the workshop, and those with little or no previous research or quality improvement experience are encouraged to participate.

To find out if STaRRlite is right for you, please see the STaRR training website or contact your Research Translation Coordinator or Olivia King (olivia.king@barwonhealth.org.au).

Places are limited, so please register early. Registrations close on 14th February unless all places are filled earlier. Note that we will aim to ensure equitable access for staff working across all Western Alliance member organisations.
